Nishit Choksi, M.D., FACC, FSCAI

IN 1988, DR. NISHIT CHOKSI completed his residency and fellowship at Royal Oak's William Beaumont Hospital. Since then, he's been a trusted presence in the community, proudly serving metro Detroit for more than three decades.

A highly skilled interventional cardiologist, Dr. Choksi is a triple-board-certified physician in internal medicine, cardiovascular disease, and interventional cardiology. He is known not only for his medical expertise but also for his commitment to innovation and problem-solving. Constantly exploring new treatments and technologies, Dr. Choksi works to stay ahead of the curve with regard to improving outcomes for his patients.

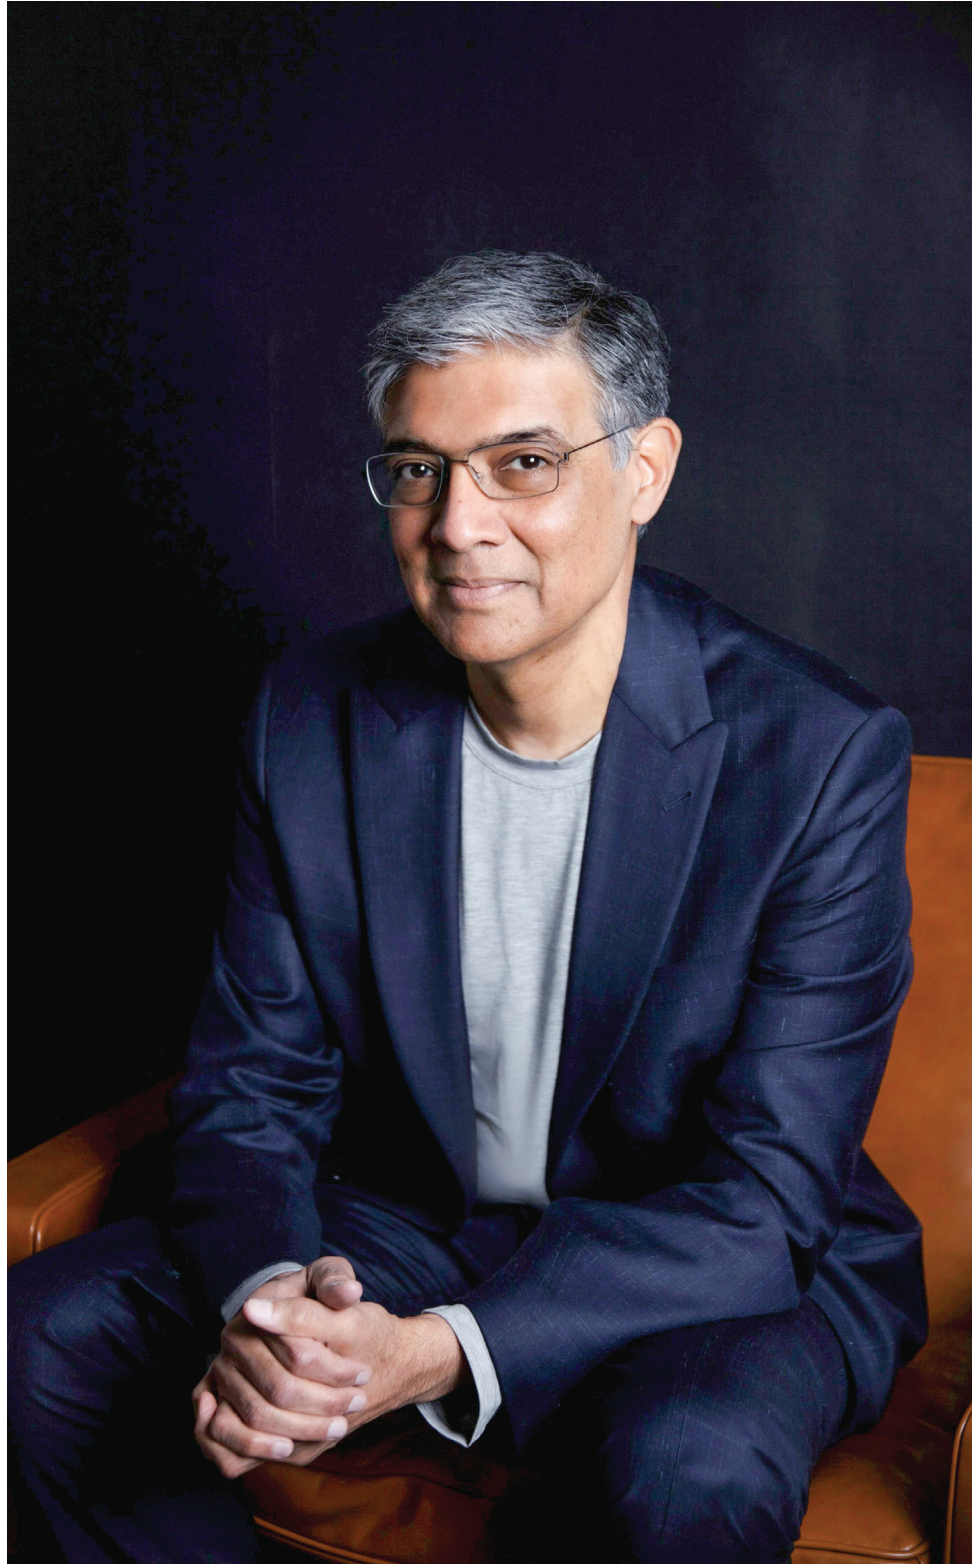

For example, Dr. Choksi was the first doctor at Henry Ford Rochester Hospital to conduct the LimFlow procedure — a deep-vein arterialization treatment. This cutting-edge procedure has helped reduce amputations in patients with critical limb ischemia.

In addition, he's among a small group of interventional cardiologists trained in genicular artery embolization (GAE), a minimally invasive procedure that gives new hope to those who are struggling with painful knee osteoarthritis — without requiring surgery.

Always curious, always learning, Dr. Choksi is consistently expanding his skill set in nonsurgical techniques. Yet what truly sets him apart is his patient-first philosophy. Known for his approachable and compassionate manner, he forms lasting bonds with patients, guiding them through their most difficult medical challenges with both skill and empathy.

His dedication to care has earned him recognition as an Hour Detroit Top Doc multiple times. Due to this commitment, he has also held various leadership roles, including chief of cardiovascular services at Henry Ford Rochester Hospital. Most recently, he helped launch the hospital's Women's Heart Program, which is expanding specialized care for women's cardiovascular health.

While reflecting on his career, Dr. Choksi keeps his philosophy simple yet powerful: "The key to success in medicine is a dedication to serving and helping others." ■
